Suriashi Clinic, by Ami Skånberg Dahlstedt

I invite you to walk in suriashi with me outside 46 Gordon Square. This is where Virginia Woolf stayed with her siblings, and later John Maynard Keynes also stayed here. It was a meeting place for Bloomsbury group. If you want to awaken the spirits of Virginia Woolf and Bloomsbury group, that is absolutely fine. Their writings and politics had an effect on how and where we are today. They could represent our ancestors. This has to be your choice. We will walk in silence to Gordon Square, then we will explore Suriashi Clinic – we will start to walk together from the street corner and up to number 46, it takes about 13 minutes. Then we walk, continuing in silence, over the zebra crossing right after number 46, into Gordon Square gardens, where you will get a sheet of paper from me, and where we have five minutes to reflect on the experience. Then we walk back to Foster Court. Photo: Ami Skånberg Dahlstedt.
