Bio: Judy was the first and only archivist at Middlesex University, formerly Hornsey College of Art, for nine years, leaving in 2011. She specialises in working with archives relating to art and design as well as community archives. She has initiated and run three HLF-funded projects and a major oral history project. She has written two books based on special collections held at Middlesex University and was the main editor of 'All This Stuff: Archiving the Artist', 2013, an important compilation of writings on the subject of artists and archives. Judy established the Art Archives Consultancy with Victoria Lane in 2013.
